

WATCH POSLAM WORK

Results Are Seen After a Single Application.

Any one wishing to test poslam, the new skin remedy, for the rapidity of its action should select a red spot or small part of a surface where the skin is extensively broken out. Poslam should be applied on this place at night and results noted in the morning by comparison with the surrounding skin, which has not been treated. Surprising results are seen, particularly when poslam is used for red and inflamed noses, fever blisters, pimples, rash, scaly scalp, itching feet, sunburn, etc. The beneficial action of this new healing agent is seen, as poslam is applied, and it is continued unremittently until its work is done. Cases of these troubles, of years' standing have been completely eradicated by poslam after other remedies were abandoned as ineffectual.

A special 50-cent package of poslam is prepared for minor uses, and this, as well as the regular jar, is on sale by all druggists, particularly "Tragles."

A sample of poslam, which will afford a convincing test, will be sent by mail, free of charge, to any one who will write to the Emergency Laboratories, 32 West 25th Street, New York City.

STILL UNABLE TO PLACE CHILDREN

Mary York's Offspring Are Imbeciles, and Charity Folk Must Support Them.

John and Mary York and the latter's two children are still being cared for by the Associated Charities, but some disposition of their pitiful case may be made to-day. John and his spouse will be cared for probably in the almshouse, but some other provision must be made for the two children, one of whom, as depicted in the photograph, is a hopeless imbecile. The smaller boy shows some traces of intelligence, and might be trained and educated so as not to be a burden on others.

"What the State sadly needs," said Dr. W. J. Mayhew, superintendent of the Children's Home Society of Virginia, "is an institution to care for idiot children. As it is now, we have no place for them, and the children are cared for by our society, which, under a standing order of the board of directors, shall care only for healthy, intelligent children, who will be subjects for adoption. Of course, no one would adopt an imbecile."

The Children's Home Society will hold its annual meeting at 8 o'clock to-morrow night, when the subject of recommending some measure for the support and training of imbecile children may be broached.

John and Mary were put to work after being taken in by the Associated Charities, which always combine charity with self-help training. John showed little inclination to work. It is one of his failings. He came into the world with a disinclination and a dislike for work and he has never recovered. He needs constant and gentle urging. He nearly worked himself to death once for a dollar, with which to get the marriage license. Then, driving a dead wagon seemed easy, but he found that he had to do something else besides sitting on the seat and holding the reins, and he resigned.

Mary, though a little less intelligent, shows a better disposition, and she has been quite industrious in cleaning rooms in the Associated Charities building. The marriage of John and Mary, while they were inmates of the county almshouse, revived discussion of the old question of whether the State should make it illegal for feeble-minded persons to marry. Mary's mother and grandfather were feeble-minded; she is an idiot, and the older son is in the last stages of idiocy. He hardly knows how to close his mouth.

FAVORS ERECTION OF NEW ARMORY

Subcommittee Opposed to Expensive Patchwork Repairs.

After hearing from several architects, the subcommittee on Grounds and Buildings last night reported to the general committee that it was of the opinion from the information secured that the city should erect a new armory building for the First Virginia Regiment at an approximate cost of $100,000, and that it should acquire property on East Marshall Street to enlarge the ground plan of the building.

Arthur W. Hall and E. H. Averill, of Washington, each presented sketches of these two architects, the firm of Averill & Hall, designed and supervised the construction of the Blues Armory. Since then they have dissolved partnership and operate independently.

Mr. Averill advised strongly against patchwork repairs to the present building, which he said, would be unsatisfactory and temporary, and would not meet the needs of the military occupying the building. The present drill hall being too small for battalion formation. He presented, however, a scheme for remodeling and enlarging the present structure and putting on a new steel truss roof at an approximate cost of $50,000. He also presented sketches for a new building, with a letter from John T. Wilson, saying that it could be erected of fireproof construction throughout for from $90,000 to $100,000.

Mr. Hall presented an estimate for remodeling the present armory without enlarging it, at $25,000, and plans for a new structure to cost approximately $102,000. He strongly advised against repairs. The roof, he said, was actually dangerous. It was an old wooden truss, more than ninety feet in length, and showed signs of sagging. The south wall was bulging and the walls in other places made it inadvisable to put a new steel roof on them. Both architects advised strongly against any effort to repair the present wooden building, and if the building is to be used again, it should be replaced at once with a steel truss, but that such alterations would be costly, and that it was much more desirable to secure the three adjoining lots and erect a new and adequate armory building, equipped on modern lines with proper military equipment, provision for gymnasium, rifle range, company rooms and storage for equipment, as well as having a drill hall large enough for battalion formations and drills.

The plans submitted were without cost to the city, but merely for the information and guidance of the committee, and competitive designs will be invited later, if the Council authorizes the appropriation for a new building.

LACK OF CAUTION COST HIM LIFE

Grover Webber, a Lineman, Got 3,000 Volts Through Body Because He Wore No Gloves.

Grover C. Webber, a lineman, in the employ of the Virginia Railway and Power Company, was instantly killed by 3,000 volts of electricity yesterday afternoon, when he came in contact with a "live" wire. The accident occurred at the power-house on Brown's Island, at the foot of Seventh Street. Webber was engaged on one of three wires which run together, ten or twelve inches apart, and in some way he must have caused a short circuit, which threw a heavy voltage through his body. Fellow-workmen who noticed the accident, ran into the power-house and cut off the power, but it was too late. Webber fell from the ladder on which he was standing, but the fall was only a few feet, and could not have hurt him.

The lineman, it is said, had disregarded the cautions of the foreman, who had told all the men to be sure to wear their rubber gloves, and if they were working upon more than one "live" wire to jacket the others. Webber did not have on his gloves, and he failed to jacket the other two wires.

Webber was twenty-five years old and unmarried. He lived at Stop 36 on the Seven Pines Line, Henrico county.
